THE IMPERIAL CRISIS

The star of Napoleon's destiny, which lured him to the field of battle, has called in the darkness of defeat, and threatens to go out amid the storm of disaster and revolution which is ready to burst upon him. While he is straining every resource to stay the onward march of victorious Prussia, and retrieve, if possible, the tarnished prestige of his vanquished legions, the Imperial throne is trembling in the balance, and elements are combining in Paris which may at a moment's warning, hurl the Bonaparte dynasty into the wreck of revolution.

The Emperor evidently comprehends the gravity of the crisis, and impressed with the absolute necessity of a military success to wipe out the disgrace of the retreat from the frontier, is throwing into the preparations for a decisive battle, all the power and energy which disease has left him. He has studied the French character with a watchfulness rendered keen by the instinct of self-preservation, and no man can better appreciate the wild rage of the Parisian populace at the reverses which they charge to his incompetency.

It is difficult to form a reliable opinion of the exact state of public feeling in France, and doubtless many accounts which we receive are highly colored and untrustworthy. It is safe to assume, however, that Napoleon has his finger on the pulse of France, and knows, better perhaps than any other, just how much it can be made to bear. The new Ministry seems to have created a favorable impression and the patriotic impulse to sink all prejudices in the hour of the nation's peril, may, if adroitly humored, be developed sufficiently to prevent an immediate outbreak and tide over the present crisis, until a victory for French arms, or another crushing defeat, shall decide the fate of Napoleon and the Empire. The army is rapidly being augmented and its proximity to the central lines of communication, should enable an immense force to be concentrated on the new base of operations. France has ample military resources and on her own soil, upon chosen ground, should certainly make a powerful and stubborn fight. The troops are doubtless depressed by defeat, and French troops are not 'noted' for bearing up under reverses, but the constant stream of reinforcements which are pouring into camp, will go far towards restoring their confidence and spirit, and under able organization, they should rapidly assume a most formidable character. The positions now occupied are strongly entrenched, and Bazaine has had time to dispose his force favorably. The Prussians on the other hand are splendidly organized, flushed with victory and supported by the nation in arms, and are doubtless preparing for the contest with a full knowledge of its difficulties and proportions.

The battle now impending in the vicinity of Metz, will be a struggle between two colossal armies equipped with all the deadly implements of modern warfare, and victory for the one can hardly bring less than destruction to the other.

Napoleon is girding for the battle of his life, in which victory shall shine upon him like the sun of Austerlitz, or defeat quench the glories of his Imperial fortunes in the night of a second Waterloo.

NORRIDGEWOCK, Me. Aug. 9th, 1870.

Chalons, where the Emperor now has his headquarters, is about 80 miles in the rear of the line of the Moselle, and 90 miles in a straight line from Paris. Metz and Nancy are 30 miles apart, and each 150 miles in a straight line from Paris. By railroad, however, their distance from the capital is much greater. The Strasbourg trunk line passes through Nancy and Chalons, the distance of the former place from Paris being by rail about 220 miles. Metz is situated on a branch of the same road, which forks a few miles north-west of Nancy, and its distance from the capital by rail is about 240 miles.

A Minister, Bancroft Writes the State Department that King William voluntarily advised Prince Leopold not to accept the Spanish crown, telling him that in the present condition of the factions in Spain, it would prove another Maximilian affair. The Prince declined the advice, and the Prussian Council of State decided that the King had no authority to arbitrarily forbid his acceptance. Finding that his efforts for a peaceful settlement were unavailing and that Napoleon was bent on forcing a war, the King turned his attention to military preparations. Mr. Bancroft feels certain that King William had no intention to interfere in the affairs of Spain and that the war has been forced upon Prussia without cause.

The Ottawa Citizen (Government organ) says that neither the Canadian Government nor any member of it has' applied to the Imperial authorities for a Government amnesty to the persons concerned in the disturbances in the North-west. But it is believed by members of the Ministry that if any amnesty, at all is proclaimed, those persons actually concerned in the murder of Scott will be specially excepted.

The leading politicians of New York city will next winter introduce in the Legislature a Bill for the incorporation of Morrisania, West Farms, West Chester, Lower Yonkers, East Chester, Pelham, New Rochelle, Mamaroneck, Sparsdale, White Plains and Glenborough, with New York city; also the conversion of Bronx River from its outlet in East River near West Farms, to White Plains, into a canal 100 feet wide, for the transportation of produce.

HEAVY DEFALCATION. A Halifax dispatch states that James Forman, cashier of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is a defaulter to the amount of $320,000. His property has been transferred to the bank, amounting to $195,000. The actual loss is $125,000. This will sweep away all the surplus assets and $5,000 of the capital. The bank is quiet and solvent, but its confidence shaken.

Ramsey, Wing, the United States Minister, was formally received at Ecuador on the 23d ult.

The Life Sustaining Principal.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of Hercules, but if he is deficient in vital energy he will not work as well, or last as long or be as healthy and happy as he does [illegible] as the man of ordinary, or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this all sustaining principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is that, it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can [illegible] the volume of a man's muscle, or thicken [illegible] substance his bones and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important, as it promotes constitutional vigor. It increases the life-power, which [illegible] and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight air [illegible] fragile, take heart; they may have more stamina, though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this stamina, principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature from whatever cause they may have become lethargic.

London, August 12—The New York Tribune's correspondent writes from Metz that the Gibbons English journalists were arrested on Sunday, as Prussian spies, mobbed by the people, repeatedly examined and released, then re-arrested and threatened with death by Gen. Coffinieres, and ordered to leave Metz and quit France instantly. France seems to have gone mad about Prussian spies. MARSHAL McMAHON'S REPORT.

Paris, 12th—The Journals of Metz publish Marshal McMahon's report to the Emperor. He says that the enemy, in greatly superior numbers, began the attack at 7 o'clock on Saturday morning, the first attack having been repulsed about noon. In the evening they re-opened the contest, throwing forward numerous sharp-shooters protected by six guns in a commanding position. Masses of infantry were then brought up. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon McMahon was forced to order a retreat, which was effected in good order, the evening's pursuit being without vigor and by no means troublesome.

The Marshal was unable to send only a partial list of the killed and wounded.

THE ARMY BEING RAPIDLY REORGANIZED AT METZ.

A dispatch from Metz, dated Aug. 11, 8:15 p. m., says it has rallied all day. The army is centred around this place, and is being recruited and reinforced.

A REPORT THAT EUGENIE AND SON ARE IN LONDON.

The nieces of the Empress have left Paris. The Echo asserts without qualification that the Empress Eugenie and the Prince Imperial are in lodgings at St. John's Wood. The Weekly Register has the same report, which, however, gives it with caution, so as not to place too much confidence in its correctness.

THE

Central Railroad, of Iowa,

235 MILES IN LENGTH.

NOW NEARLY COMPLETED.

This Company are now pushing their work forward with great rapidity, and the entire line of 235 miles between St. Louis and St. Paul is graded, and under contract to be finished this season. The fact that this enterprise has been undertaken by a combination of leading contractors and railroad capitalists of well-known wealth, experience, and ability, ensures its early completion and future success.

The road runs through the richest and most thickly settled portion of Iowa, and is built in the interests of the great Northern system of roads with its centre at St. Paul. The of the Company pay 7 per cent Gold Interest, free of Government tax, and are issued for the very small amount of $16,000 per mile. For the present, a small portion are offered at 90 and accrued interest. The attention of investors is invited to the fact that the road is now nearly finished, and that the Security is therefore entitled to a high rank.

First Mortgage Bonds

In our opinion, no class of investments has been placed so uniformly safe and profitable as First Mortgages on completed railroads.

Of 235 companies operating 30,000 miles of railroad in the Northern and Western States, on which there is a bonded debt of $902,000,000, we know of but two that do not pay their interest regularly.

We believe there will be no more favorable time to obtain an investment, and buy really first class Railroad Securities—such as these—than the present.

W. B. SHATTUCK,
Treasurer.

After a full examination, we have accepted the Agency for the Sale of the above First Mortgage Bonds, and desire to recommend them to our customers AS A THOROUGHLY SAFE AS WELL AS PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

ADDRESS

TO THE

NERVOUS

AND

DEBILITATED,

Whose sufferings have been protracted from ridiculous quackery, and whose cases require prompt treatment to render existence desirable. If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urinary organs, or your kidneys frequently get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or ropey, or is it ropy on settling? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, irritable, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye not brilliant? Is the bloom on your cheek not bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, often do fits of melancholy? If so do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you restless nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver-complaint?

Now, read! self-abuse, venereal disease badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. If organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose generative organs are in perfect health? You never hear of such men being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they never become sad and discouraged; they are always polite and pleasant in the company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your "sweet-potatoes" for any other weakness about them. I do not mean those who lead the one or are initated by running to excess. Those will not only ruin their constitutions, but also those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self-abuse and exposure have brought that train of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much, as to induce almost every other disease—lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and a most every other form of disease which humanity is heir to, and the real cause of their trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have died for want but from the right one?

Diseases of these organs require the use of a diuretic.

LEISURE

BY JEAN INGELOW

Sweet is the leisure of the bird,
That craves no time for work deferred;
How sweet are nests to nothing scarred
By toiling for loftiness once,
That is the leisure of the wheat:
It hears no change about it creep
Up day by day, nor does it reap
Till they it nestleth in the heat,
And grows, and whispers orisons.

Grant in the leisure of the earth,
She gives to her happy myriads birth,
An all their years are sons not death.
But goes to sleep in snow-wreaths thin;
Dread is the leisure up above
Who wills He sits who name is Love,
And waits on Noah till for the love, I
To wit if she would fly to him

Ho waits for us while harpsichord things,
We beat about with bruised wings
On the dark it ots and water springs,
Till ruined, we fall, the doubter and,
With open window from the prime
All night till day, he waits sat time,
Until the fullness of the time
Decreed from His eternity

Where is our leisure?—given in rest!
Where is the quiet we possessed?
We must have had it once—were blest!
With peace while Heaven's throne yet outlies
Sorely the mother of mankind
Longed for the garden lost behind
Ere we with tears some yearnings blind
Inherited from Paradise

FREQUENT HOEINGS.—The Maine Farmer concludes an article on hoeing as follows:—Frequent hoeings, even during the driest seasons cost more to the benefit of the crop. By loosening of the soil, the air, and especially moisture, is encouraged with moisture (even in times of severe drought), becomes more ready access to the roots of plants, and becomes distributed all the soil. It is often during a hard time in our drought we have seen corn leaves and other vegetation roll up during the day time, but come out again at night in consequence of the falling of the dew, or the presence of moisture.

Where the ground is not stirred it becomes crusted over, baked, as it is called, and forms the mosquito from below does not find its way up through to meet the condensed air of night. But where ground is frequently hoed the reverse is the case, hence the benefit of repeated hoeings during the summer months. Upon this point, one of our late English journals mentioned the fact that during the extremely dry season of 1826, a gentleman was in the habit of hoeing with his own hand three drills of turnips daily. The result was that the three drills thus hoed were a good crop, while the yield upon the remainder of the field, hoed less frequently, came almost to nothing.

When President of the French Republic Napoleon III issued the following proclamation. Our readers know how he has fulfilled the promises therein made:

I appear before you as a warm and true democrat and republican! I take the shadow of the first consulate as the symbol of the Promised which I now solemnly make I will be, as I always was, a child of France. In every Frenchman I will ever see a brother. The democratic republic is the object of my adoration, and I will be her minister. Never will I try to clothe myself in imperial robes My ambition cease to be on the day when I forget the trust you confide to me. France May my lips forever be closed and I say a word against the republican sympathies of the French people. May I be expelled if I suffer doctrines to be taught in my name contrary to the democratic principles and the government of the republic May I be contemned if I accept a dishonorable hand upon the rights of the people, either with their consent or against their will by force. And you trust me, as I trust you, may this call from me be like a prayer to Heaven Vive la Republique!

SPINNING OF ANIMAL HAIR.—The hair of certain animals, especially of rabbits and hares, has been spun for some time in England on machines specially constructed for the purpose This is not done according to the method in which they are used as a coloring or down on woolen yarns, but they form the thread by themselves, or with only a slight admixture of silk or cotton of the finest quality The yarns thus prepared are possessed of great beauty, and form a kind of velvet to use, especially applicable to ladies' apparel. The principal colors are white and black, other colors, however, are natural, partly artificial, but fine and fast are not excluded. This branch of manufacture has lately begun to spread to the continent also.
